THE LOUISVILLE CLUB

Its Best Players Alleged to Have Been Taken by Brooklyn. BROOKLYN, Sept. 21 .- President Byrnes, of the Brooklyn Baseball Club, says he has entered into an agreement with the Louisville Club whereby catcher Grimm and second baseman Pfeffer will be released to Brooklyn at the end of the season. He has also signed "Buster" Burrell and outfielder Hines, of Minneapolis, whom Chicago and Cincinnati were said to have drafted. Regarding the reported sale of the Louisville franchise to Milwaukee Mr. Byrnes said that such a transaction must be first ratified by the League. As trustee of the Tem-ple cup Mr. Byrnes is preparing a set of rules, which he will forward to President Young, governing the playing of this series. These rules must be signed by the managers of both clubs contesting for the tro-

President Stuckey Speaks. LOUISVILLE, Sept. 21.-President Stuckey, of the Louisville, club, was shown the dispatch from Brooklyn this morning that Pfeffer and Grimm had been sold, and asked if he knew anything of the deal. He said: "Grimm and Pfeffer have not been sold to the Brooklyn club. We have named our figures, and I would infer from this telegram that they will be accepted. However, Grimm and Pfeffer are still members of the Louisville club, and will remain such until the deal is closed by the payment of the cash. 'What about the sale of the franchise to Milwaukee?" "I have not received any offer for the franchise by the Milwaukee matter of course, we will sell it, but we must get our figure. You understand, however, that we will not sell it unless that is Asked if Louisville would go in the new league in the event of her leaving the National League, the president said that he knew nothing of the new league except what he had seen in the papers.

DR. COOK'S EXCURSION

EX-MAYOR GARDNER, OF CLEVE-LAND, MAKES FRESH CHARGES.

He Says the Expedition Was Arranged Solely for the Pecuniary Benefit of the Promoter.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 21 .- Ex-Mayor Geo

W. Gardner, of this city, who was a member of the Cook Greenland excursion party, returned to-day. He says the affair was misrepresented and mismanaged in every particular by Dr. Cook. The Miranda had only arrived in New York harbor with a load of coffee from South America three days before she sailed for Greenland, and was entirely unfit and unprepared to make the trip. The captain protested vigorously against taking the vessel north, but all to no purpose. Continuing, Mr. Gardner charged Dr. Cook with sending out alluring circulars when getting up the party which proved to be most deceiving, and that the excursion was simply run for pecuniary benefit to the promoter. The ex-Mayor alleges that while the excursion started out with the intention of remaining north two months, enough provisions were only taken to last two-thirds of that time, and the party was soon put on short raprovisions for ourselves, and, as every one knows, our trip was to include everything. Once Dr. Cook brought around an itemized account of his expenses in a vain en-deavor to secure additional compensation for the trip. Before the transfer of the passengers from the Miranda to the Rigel Dr. Cook told each man that absolutely but what was necessary in th way of clothing would be allowed on the schooner. In the face of this order Cook the night before, and secretly, had con veyed to the Rigel his own property, including a stock of liquors and cigars, which he sold to the passengers on the trip at a ridiculously high price. Everything that Cook had was saved, while not one of the passengers or crew saved anything of value Cook's sole idea from beginning to end was profit. When we reached a port he insisted on being the first man off the boat, so that he could buy everything of value from the natives. He bartered and haggled, and made money and that is all that he did do." Professor Wright ever said that the crev of the Miranda was drunk most of the time. I never honored or respected a mar more than I do Captain Farrell, and he men were, most of them, perfect in their behavior. The day we struck on the reef

"I don't believe," says Mr. Gardner, "that there was a little drinking among the firemen, who, somehow, had managed to get hold of some whisky. As to the crew itself there was no drinking and Professor Wright could not have meant that there was, for he could not have known it if there had been. He was sick most of the

The entire story, as related by Mr. Gardner, shows Dr. Cook in the light of being a merchant for as large a profit as possible. In his greed for money he risked lives, health and most varuable property, and it was nothing but good luck that saved the party from worse than property loss.

PLAYED POOR

INDIANAPOLIS GIVES THE CHAMP-IONS A GAME ON ERRORS.

Bad Base Running Contributed to the Result, as Did Manager Sharsig's Refusal to Play Phillips.

After winning seven straight games Indianapolis dropped one to the champions yesterday, who were thus enabled to tie the series, each club taking nine. Much of the responsibility for yesterday's defeat rests on Manager Sharsig's shoulders. He insisted on playing Fred Schaub in right field instead of putting Phillips there. Schaub had a couple of costly errors and was lamentably weak at the bat. Phillips's hitting might have cut a big figure in the result, as he is a success in that particular as well as in the box. He has also done some good work in right field, and might have saved some Sloux City runs. After Schaub's bad work in the fifth President Golt directed Sharsig to make the change, but, instead of doing so, the obstinate manager sent the big pitcher to the clubhouse, and he reappeared soon afterwards in street dress. It is true the team is sadly crippled by Motz's absence, but it is past everybody's comprehension why a manager should fail to put his best foot forward when engaged in a hot contest for fifth place. With Phillips in Schaub's place the team is admittedly stronger both in the field and at the bat. Manager Sharsig displayed poor judgment, and followed it up by refusing to make a needed change, probably because he considered it an admission that he had blundered. The errors, behind him caused Pepper to weaken somewhat, and, in the eighth, aided by Roat's failure to pick up Hart's grounder, the champions batted in five runs. The game was almost devoid of interesting features, Krauss's catch of a foul fly and the hard hitting of Mills, Marr and Camp alone being notable. Hogriever was removed from the game by Umpire Sheridan in the fourth inning for disregarding his order to get off the coaching line. The Sioux City fielder had become a little "personal" in his coaching, and Sheridan sent him to the bench in the third, but in the fourth he bobbed up again on the line and refused to come in at Sheridan's command. The umpire fined him $10 and removed him from the game. He tried to go to bat in the fifth, but was stopped by Sheridan. There was some hot talk, after which "Lefty" Marr was substituted. The change was a bad one for Indianapolis, for Marr hatted in six of Slove City's runs bittless. batted in six of Sloux City's runs, hitting safe every time he went to bat, once for

For five innings the game was in doubt, but Watkins's men clinched it in the sixth and made it doubly sure in the eighth. In their half of the latter inning Indianapolis struck a little batting streak, which did not last long, however, Hart managing to strike McCarthy out, something rarely done. He kept the hits better scattered throughout the game than Pepper, and received good support. The Inper, and received good support. The In-dianapolis pitcher was as effective so far as the number of hits went, but the players behind him, with the exception of Mills, did not appear to feel sure of themselves, and that naturally had its effect on him. Westlake made a wild-eyed throw that was responsible for Sioux City's first run in the third, and was also responsible for the failure of Indianapolis to score more than two in the fourth, when he ran him-self out at second on a single. This blundering piece of base running cut off nobody will ever know how many runs. Roat was also caught at second in somewhat similar fashion in the second inning. At least the umpire said he was out, though he was undoubtedly safe. It was bad base running, just the same, something Indianapo-lis has been full of lately, and yesterday it cost pretty dearly.

Singles by Mills, Roat and Shields and Hart's bad throw yielded Indianapolis two runs in the second. McCarthy's must of Pepper's throw on Krauss gave that player a life in the third. Hart's sacrifice advanced him a base, Westlake's wild throw moved him to third and he scored on Carrel's single. He would have been left at moved him to third and he scored on Camp's single. He would have been left at third but for Westlake's throw. Mills hit safe to center in the fourth and Westlake drove a single to left, but spoiled it by trying to stretch it into a double, Hogriever easily throwing him out at second. Roat was hit by a pitched ball, and Mills scored on a wild pitch, which advanced Roat. Shield's sacrifice and McCarthy's single enabled him to cross the rubber, Pepper having reached first on balls. McCarthy's hit was a scratch, which bounded out of Stewart's reach. Henry ended the inning by striking out. A base on balls, two singles and errors by Schaub allowed the champions to tie the score in the fifth, and in the sixth they followed it up with and in the sixth they followed it up with three more. Holahan got a triple, Gray dropped McCauley's fly, Krauss reached first on balls and Marr hit for three bases. That tells the story of the inning. McCar-thy's triple in the eighth evoked some shouts, and he scored on Gray's sacrifice, but Hart was too much for Henry and Schaub. Singles by O'Rourke, Krauss and Marr and Camp's triple, with Roat's miss of Hart's grounder, gave Sioux City five more runs in the eighth.

Indianapolis made a flickering attempt at a rally in the last half, but the odds were too much. Mills led with a two-bagger to left and Westlake fouled out to Krauss. Roat caught one on the end of his bat and drove it to the left-field fence for three bases, sending Mills in, and scoring himself on Shields's safe hit to center. Pepper was retired at first by Hart and McCarthy astonished everybody by striking out. The game was then called to enable Sloux City to catch a train for Grand Rapids. There were 1,500 people at the grounds, and at least 1,499 of them were badly disappointed

Western League Race. Games. Won. Lost. Per ct. Kansas City...123 Minneapolis Grand Rapids.. 124 Indianapolis ..122 Detroit121 Milwaukee120 Only Two More Games. There will be only two more games of ball here this season, to-day and Monday, when the contestants will be the Indianapolls and Milwaukee teams. The game scheduled for to-morrow will be played in Milwaukee, both clubs going to that city to-night and returning to-morrow night. In to-day's game either Cross or Phillips will pitch for the home team, and either Phillips or Pepper in Monday's game. These 'will be the last opportunities for Indianapolis "rooters" to see baseball this season.

Both games will be called at 3:30 o'clock, and ladies will be admitted free. The In-dianapolis club has a fighting chance to beat Grand Rapids out for fifth place, as Sioux City will be likely to give Caruthers and his men a lively tussle, while Milwau-kee may drop a couple here. If Motz had played the season out the chances for passing Grand Rapids would be first-class. It is only fair to the patrons of the game that Indianapolis should present the strongest possible team in these last games, and if Cross is in the box Phillips should play right field.

Ball Players Want More Money. President Brush, of the Cincinnati team says that since the publication concerning the proposed new opposition league good ball players have stiffened their salary demands, and are difficult to secure at anything like reasonable figures. They evidently anticipate some sort of fight, and want to make the most of it. Players who would have signed Thursday for $150 or $175 a month now hold off for double those fig-Comiskey says, after sizing up the Western League players, that there are a num-ber of them not yet drafted, any one of whom is fast enough for the National League. He has a good opinion of Western League talent.

A Misunderstanding Corrected. To the Editor of the Indianapolis Journal: In an article on Hamlin Garland's last spectacular assault upon the literary people of the East, an editorial writer in a recent issue of the Journal says: "Will Garland, flanked by the Populist party and the Western Association of Writers, not be able to hold his own?" As it would, evidently, be unnatural for the Journal to seek to convey a false impression with reference to the position of a society that is so largely composed of its supporters and friends, as is the Western Association of Writers, the innuendo thus cast was doubtless either unintentional or the result of a misconception upon the part of the writer. It is, therefore, in no complaining spirit that members of that organization are asking each other why the name of the Western Association should be linked with this business, or what crime it has committed that it should be held up to ridicule in connection with utterances for which it is not responsible and with which it has no more sympathy than the Journal itself. In seeking to advance the interests of western writers and thinkers the association has never found it necessary to make any warfare upon the authors, writers and thinkers of the East or any other section of the country. Were Mr. Garland a member of the association he would probably be permitted to air his opinions at its meetings, but he would not find there an endorsement of any narrowly sectional utter-ance, and certainly none for an assault upon the literary people of an entire sec-tion. The Western Association finds enough to do in ways that are fair and legitimate, and so regarded by the think-ers of all sections, without seeking to array even so humble a portion of the community and one that, in the aggregate, is so little considered, as the writers of one section against those of any other part of the against those of any other part of the Union. The association is not, per se, an author's club, and the majority of its members are not professional authors nor people who are expecting to earn their several livings by authorship. It is made up of authors, editors, professional people, newspaper contributors, scientific investigators, college professors and all sorts of reputable people who write or who are interested in the growth of healthy literature tastes among the people. Individuals have their opinions and utter them freely, but the instances are few and far between wherein stances are few and far between wherein sectional bitterness has been expressed or attack made upon the literature of people of the East, and in no case has such expressions been indorsed by the association. Naturally enough, in the freedom of speech which is the privilege of each and all, there have been many discussions of the various schools of writers and think-ers. Some have criticized Tolstoi, Howells and the entire school of realists while others have as stoutly defended them. But this would as readily occurr in an Eastern author's club as in a Western association of writers. Such discussions are governed by other than sectional consider-ations and have certainly never been characterized by malice or sectional feeling. In behalf of the writers of the West, the position of the society-which has been so often and so fully stated that no one who cares to know what it is need be in doubtis that merit at home is as meritorious as it is a thousand or three thousand miles away. It asks not that Western readers discriminate against the writers of ignore the worthy efforts of their own people, and that they should not be so largely dependent upon the East for other sections but that they should not knowledge of the valuable work done or attempted, in literature by their neighbors. seeks only to inculcate a proper appreciation and respect for our own section and our own people, believing that to respect ourselves and our labors is not only the surest means of winning the most from life and its tolls but also of commanding the respect of others. That it could not be so short-sighted and foolish as to give its approval to a hue and cry against the East ought to be apparent to anybody who will stop to remember that of the authors who are in active membership nearly every one has found fayor with Eastern editors and critics, and quite a number publish t. air books through Eastern publishing houses. The demand that the interests of Western publications shall be advanced among our own people comes not from jealousy of nor dislike for the Eastern people, but from the same causes which prompt the Journal and pretty much everybody else to urge forward every worendeavor to promote home enterprise and home prosperity. The average writer would enjoy a little prosperity in the line of work to which he is or fancies himself to be inclined, as well as other people, and he has sense enough to know that the best market, except for the very few, is the home market, and it is certainly no crime that he should strive to bring about such a state of public sentiment as will render it no longer the hardest market to reach, When that shall (if ever) be accomplished If his efforts still fail, he will at least have the satisfaction of knowing that he has had a fair hearing before being relegated to the limbo of the unappreciated and for-

To sum up, then, people have a perfect right to think well or ill of us, either in our associated capacity or as individuals, whether such opinions are the result of knowledge or merely of preconceived no-tions; but we do object to being held responsible as an association, even by inference, for the championship of utterances and ideas which are altogether foreign to us and our purposes, and which are not in harmony either with the history or the position of the association, and which do violence to the feelings and interests of its members. This is said without asperity or design to find fault, for we feel that there was no intent on the part of the Journal to do us a wrong; and yet it is none the less unwelcome to us that such an under-standing should go out over the country, even though it is given forth by what was probably designed as a bit of editorial humor. For, whether the association has

We have found a great deal of happiness and enjoyment mixed up with the effort to sustain an association that seeks to advance rather than pull down, which rides no hobbies and has no enemies to conquer except those which bar the path of thought and rectitude for others as well as for ourselves, and year by year we grow more and more in love with it.
